

Learning new skills, techniques and strategies applicable to my job...

My Apprenticeship Journey

Hear from one of our incredible learners from The Hut Group who has experienced the journey firsthand.

Miroslav, who has completed his Supply Chain Warehouse Operative apprenticeship with The Hut Group, has found his apprenticeship to be really beneficial for his development.

Choosing an apprenticeship with the goal of building up his knowledge and skills, Miroslav has found the experience to be really helpful in his growth, development and job role. He has consistently learned new things, with each session bringing new skills, techniques and strategies that are directly applicable to his job.

Not originally from England, Miroslav has faced some challenges in understanding certain topics due to language barriers. However, he has found that his Vocational Skills Coach, Liam, has been exceptional in his support, finding ways to explain complex material in a manner that is understandable to Miroslav! Throughout his programme, Miroslav has not only improved his hard skills but has also gained a deeper understanding of Health and Safety laws in Warehousing. His apprenticeship has increased his confidence and skill development which are essential elements in his role as a team manager.

The apprenticeship has particularly enhanced Miroslav's knowledge of warehousing and its applications in his job. As a team manager, effective communication is important, and the course has equipped him with valuable insights that he can apply, share, and ensure are followed within his team.

His advice to those undertaking an apprenticeship, or considering one, is to use the learning resources and materials provided by the Learning Curve Group tutors and to absorb as much information as possible. He credits Liam for his enthusiasm and passion for the learner's progression and his unwavering support!
